I. Basis of the opinion

The present written opinion is based on the documents of the application as initially filed.

- V. Reasoned statement according to Rule 66.2(a)(ii) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability
- 1. In the light of the documents cited in the international search report, it is considered that the invention as claimed in at least one of the claims does not seem to satisfy the criteria stipulated in Article 33(1) PCT, that is to say it does not seem to be novel or to involve an inventive step (see the international search report, in particular the cited documents X and/or Y and the references of the corresponding claims).
- 2. If amendments are submitted, the Applicant must meet the requirements of Rule 66.8 PCT and indicate what, in the application as initially filed, may serve as basis for the amendments made (Article 34(2)(b) PCT), otherwise there will be a risk of these amendments being ignored when drawing up the international preliminary examination report.

 The Applicant's attention is drawn to the fact that in the event of an unnecessarily large number of independent claims, an examination will not be carried out on any of the claims.
- NB: Should the Applicant decide to demand a thorough, detailed examination, an international preliminary examination report would then normally be prepared immediately. Exceptionally, the examiner may prepare a second written opinion, if this has been expressly requested.

Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Rule 66.2(a)(ii) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. The following documents are cited:

D1: EP-A-0 651 465

D2: GB-A-2 286 731

D3: DE 100 29 649 A

D4: FR-A-2 704 360

D5: US-A-5 754 409

D6: US-A-5 601 451

D7: US-A-4 767 338

2. The document D1 discloses (the references in brackets relate to this document), see Claim 1:

A distribution box connection module for telecommunications and data technology, comprising a housing in which externally accessible input and output contacts are arranged for the connection of cables and cores, with the housing having a cavity in which at least one printed circuit board (106) is arranged, with the input and output contacts being arranged on the opposite end faces of the housing, and with the input contacts being associated with one input side and the output contacts being associated with one output side,

and

the input contacts (228) are in the form of at least two mutually opposite rows (110, 112) of contacts, and the output contacts are in the form of at least one plug connector (114), with at least two input contacts (228) in the first row (110) and at least two input contacts (228) in the second row (112) being connected to the output contacts (284) in the at least one plug connector (114), and with the input contacts (228) in the first row and in the second row (110, 112) being connected via the at least one printed circuit board (106) to the output contacts in the plug connector.

All of the features of Claim 1 are thus known from D1, and the subject matter of Claim 1 is not novel (Article 33(2) PCT).

- 3. The additional features of Claims 2-12 are known from the prior art in the cited documents.
 - Claims 2-12 therefore do not satisfy the requirements of Article 33(3) PCT.
